DETAILED ACTION

Drawings

1. New corrected drawings in compliance with 37 CFR 1.121(d) are required in this application because certain reference characters are unclear in fig. 2 and fig. 3. Applicant is advised to employ the services of a competent patent draftsperson outside the Office, as the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office no longer prepares new drawings. The corrected drawings are required in reply to the Office action to avoid abandonment of the application. The requirement for corrected drawings will not be held in abeyance.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 1-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Frenkel et al. (US 6,007,569); hereinafter Frenkel.

As for claim 1, Frenkel teaches a color shift therapy apparatus (electrostressograph system 12; fig. 1) comprising:
a control means (designated colors and colored light-control sequences inputted via remote control 19 or keyboard 18; column 5 lines 36-41);
a color display (imagescope console 15; column 5 lines 13-25); and a means (computer 21) for providing color shifting signals (i.e. the color changes or colored light-control sequences) to said color display in response to said control means (column 5 lines 1-4). For details on the system, see column 4 line 47 through column 6 line 31.

As for claims 2 and 3, the keyboard 18 inputted by a doctor or technician corresponds to claimed clinician input means and keyboard.

As for claim 4, the computer 21 corresponds to claimed central processing unit.

As for claim 5, the imagescope console 15 may take the form of a television console and thus corresponds to claimed television.

As for claim 6, Frenkel further teaches placing a patient (patient 16) in front of the display (column 4 lines 66-67 and column 5 lines 42-43);

providing initial clinician input to the central processing unit to display colors and color shifts on the color display (the doctor or technician changes the colors and designates particular colored light-control sequences; column 5 lines 38-41); and determining if the colors and color shifts have a desired effect on said patient (by means of glove 14, monitoring system 20, electrodes 17, camera 13 and a finalized and printed electrostressogram 22; see column 4 lines 47-65 and column 5 line 49 through column 6 line 12).

As for claims 7 and 8, Frenkel teaches that based on the electrostressogram 22, color light therapy or dosing can be established (column 6 lines 3-5).

Conclusion

4. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Wilson (US 6,676,284 B1) teaches a lighting apparatus capable of programmed to different colors by individually controlling a plurality of LEDs within.

Duggal et al. (US 6,357,889 B1) teach a color tunable light source includes multiple light emitting components, such as light emitting diodes (LEDs) or laser diodes (LDs) with different emission wavelengths, and multiple phosphors (24) with different excitation and emission wavelengths. A keypad is used to enter desired color.

Dancs et al. (US 2005/0195598 A1) teach a therapeutic device with several selectable lighting modes, which are lighting of different colors or color sequences.

Ducharme et al. (US 7,014,336 B1) teach a lighting device including LED lighting units capable of generating light of a range of colors and is used to provide light or supplement ambient light to afford lighting conditions suitable for a wide range of applications. The color control is precise based on color temperature.
